Since the fall of 2003...

- ☆ over 8000 US soldiers have deserted
- ☆ almost 3000 UK soldiers have deserted

During the Vietnam War, Ft. Lewis was a center of military rebellion. Troops organized themselves to print anti-war newspapers, participated in mess hall strikes, and openly refused deployment. These actions, along with "search and avoid" missions, routine sabotage, and outright fragging of officers contributed in large part to ending the war.

Now during the Iraq War, troops stationed at Ft. Lewis are once again refusing to obey commands. Sgt. Ricky Clousing, Spc. Suzanne Swift, and Lt. Ehren Watada along with several others have refused to continue fighting. If these actions continue to grow they could pose a real threat and finally end the war.
